

The 14 day Google Page Rank Experiment

By Eric Gehler

On October 6, 2005 I created the Blog <http://root-canal-dentistry.info>. The purpose of the Blog was to experience on indexing, Page rank, AdSense revenue and the potential power of a word press Blog.

There was no special additional SEO placed upon this site in the 14 day period in which this site gained results.

Synopsis:

This Blog was created as a test. It is in the main root of the Url. Little to no attention has been given to this site since the last post and prior to the Update on Oct.20 via Google.

This experiment shows that Google Page Rank is not hard to acquire. Google page rank is based upon inbound links vs, outbound links from both an onsite factor and offsite factor. Simple sites with links back to the index and a sub folder will have a page rank of 3. A simple inbound links in a greater amount than outbound links will pass the Google Page rank.

The Blog experiment of getting indexed quickly has been successful.

The Adsense revenue from just a few days has been promising.

Moral of this story.
Word Press Blogging works.
Linking Works.
Just do it!!!
